PREFACE

Yavapai, the treasure county of Arizona, has developed its mines beyond the speculative stage and is now regarded as one of the richest mineral fields in the country. Yet it is merely on the threshold of activity, and although accredited with more patented mines than any other subdivision of the Territory, its mineral resources still far outstrip its developments.

The records give to this county a greater number of mining locations and operators than is contained by the combined number of any other three counties in Arizona. Hinton, the statistician, states that up to October 1, 1876, of 11,605 mines located and recorded in the Territory, 7, 298 were in the county of Yavapai. Since then, however, the proportion has materially changed.

Arizona mines are being worked to much greater depth than in former years, and the once much-mooted story that "Arizona mines don't go down," has been disproved repeatedly. At mines where early developments consisted merely in burrowing the surface for rich free metal and which finally were said to have "pinched out," modern operators have discovered that by the use of recent and heavy machinery greater profits can be made to accrue than ever before. It has been demonstrated very fully that the prime value of the mineral industry in this region lies in the deep mining.

This mining directory—the first ever issued in the Territory—has been difficult of compilation, but after months of careful preparation is presented to the public as a work that furnishes a ready guide to any mining property of importance located between the long boundary lines of Yavapai county. The selection of the more prominent mines, and groups of mines, including a complete list of all patented claims and those surveyed for patent on record in the United States Land Office has been so arranged as to afford easy reference.

Courtesies and valuable assistance from Mr. Ernest A. Haggott, M. E., from the Register and the Receiver of the United States Land Office, and from the County Recorder are gratefully acknowledged.

RUSSELL H. MILLWARD.

Owners and operators are arranged alphabetically with cross references to the mining districts in which their properties are located. In a number of cases the names of the more prominent officers of mining companies and individual owners are repeated to afford easy reference to the properties which they operate. They will be found arranged individually, and under the name of a mining company with which they are identified.

The cross references to mining districts are designated as follows:

Agua Fria District.....	A
Ash Creek District.....	See Cherry Creek

There is such a demand and so many inquiries for the directory of the mining industry of the entire Territory that the work of compiling and arranging the data is being rushed to its completion.

It is now expected that the book will be ready for issue by September 15th. It will contain a list of all the mines and prospects of any importance in Arizona, together with the names and postoffice addresses of owners and operators.

Correspondence from prospective advertisers for this edition is solicited.

ARIZONA MINING DIRECTORY.
